

A thousand needles
are built to defend.
But one on its own will serve not but to tend.

When the cracks
all but burn,
the gate keys
will turn.

Until near death
each one learn,
the exit you
will not earn.

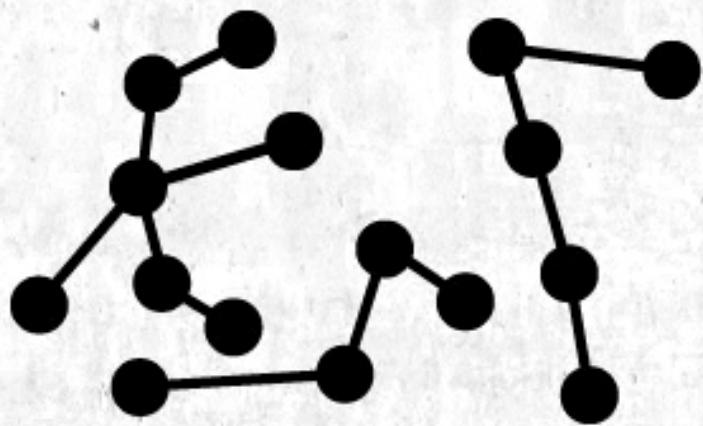

With the waters of ice,
to be dropped by the flames,
you must harden but twice,
like that that remains.

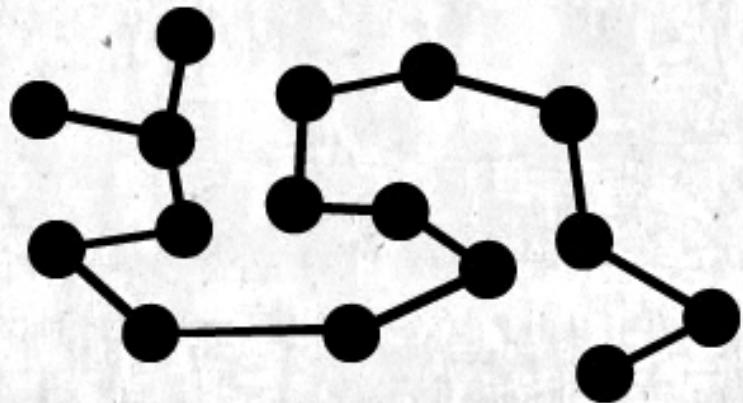

Red and sweet
is good to eat.
Black and sour
will kill you in an hour.
Blue and true
opens visions for you.
Green and plush
Will end you in a rush.

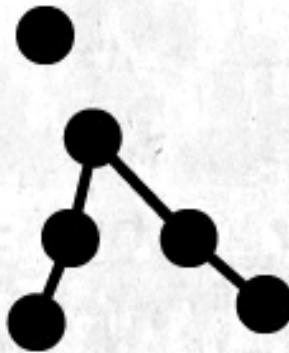

When you finally can't sea,
the darkness will tell.
Only one that can be,
and it will do yell.

To liquid
from rock.
With it the
planter restock.

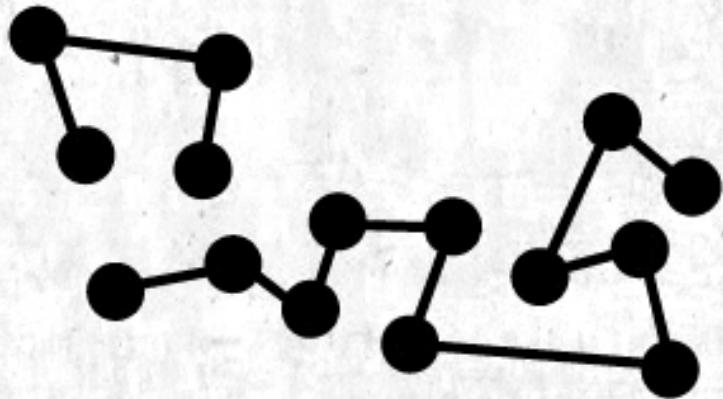

With the aqua of red,
where the skulls of those lie,
place there one like,
from a girl or a guy.

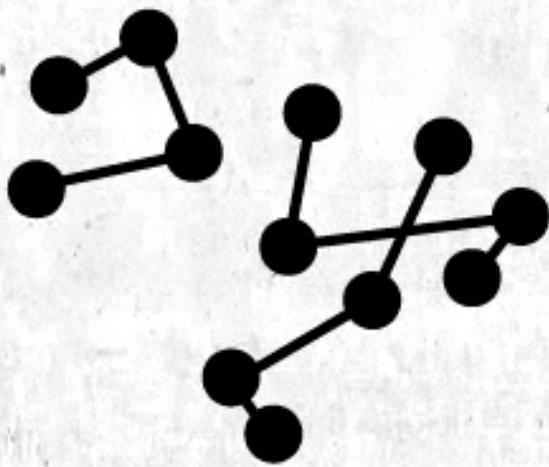

A prick by the thorns
is needed but thrice.

Then again by blue fungi,
but once will suffice.

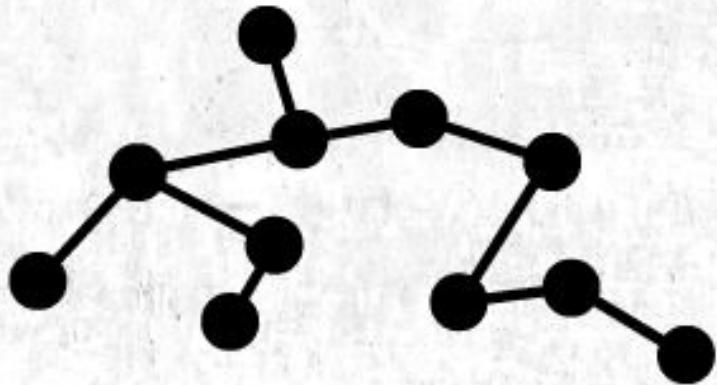

The bright smells intice,
feline's tail not as nice.

Though the latter
you must pluck,
and former do not touch.

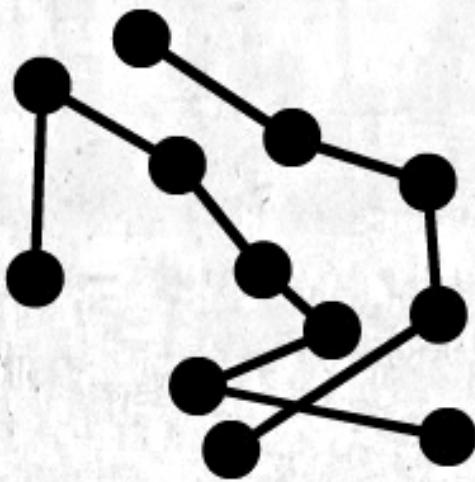

Of the cave lies the beast.
Of which must not go.
But the colors of earth,
into there you must throw.

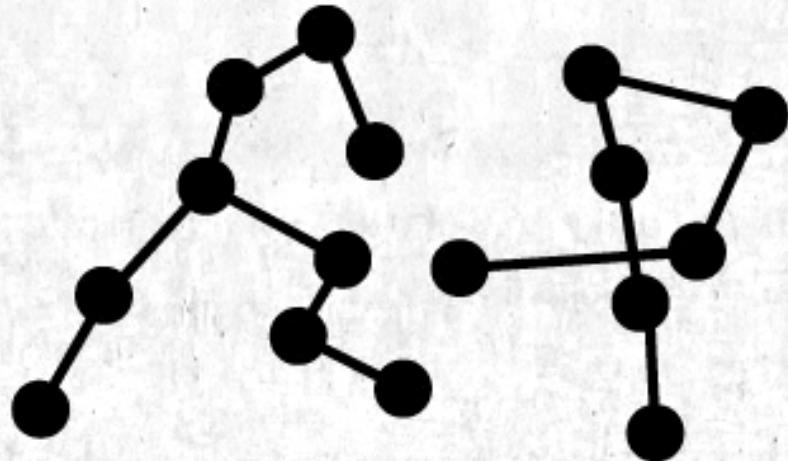

With the crystal
fragment near,
to the fires of
deep draw near.

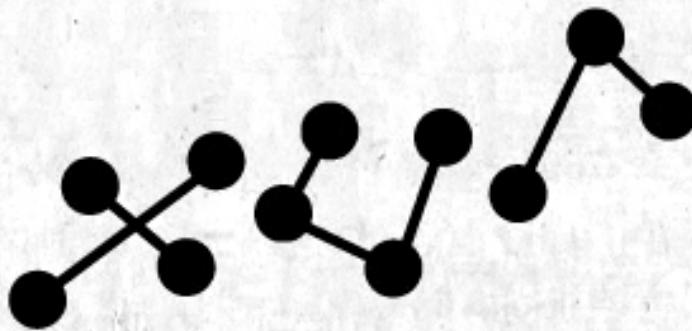

A drop in the sear,
that which you
may hold dear.

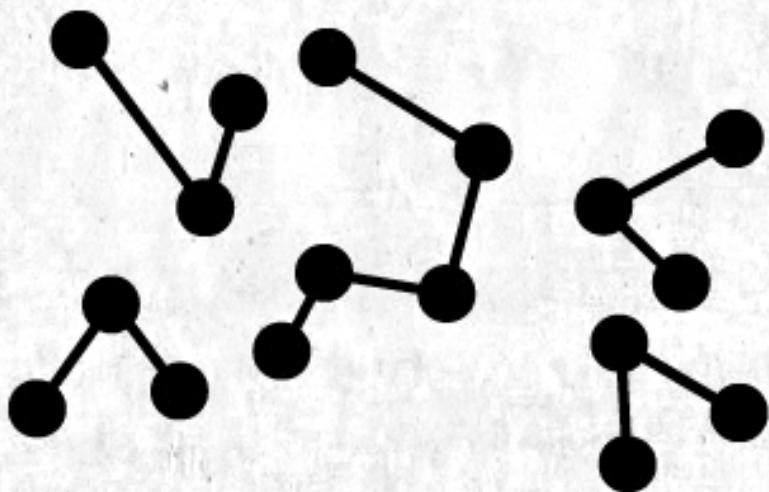

The dragon will speak,
but it's movement
they seek.
To freeze in the place,
will make you one safe.

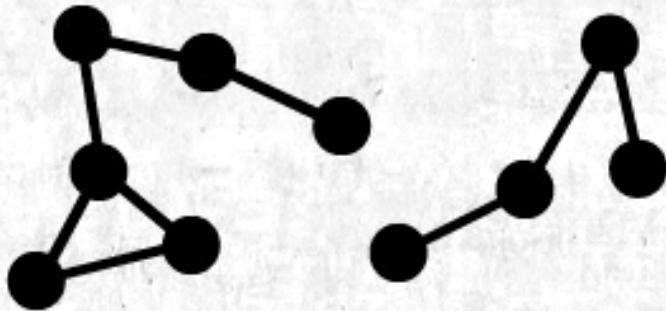

For the fins you
will need assist,
with back and forth
you must then twist.
To bring close the sea,
and grab one from thee.

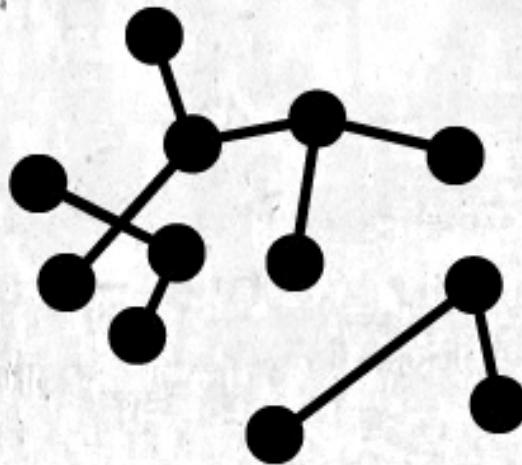

With the cauldron
of souls, tortured
by old. You must
neutralize the brew,
to let free them hold.

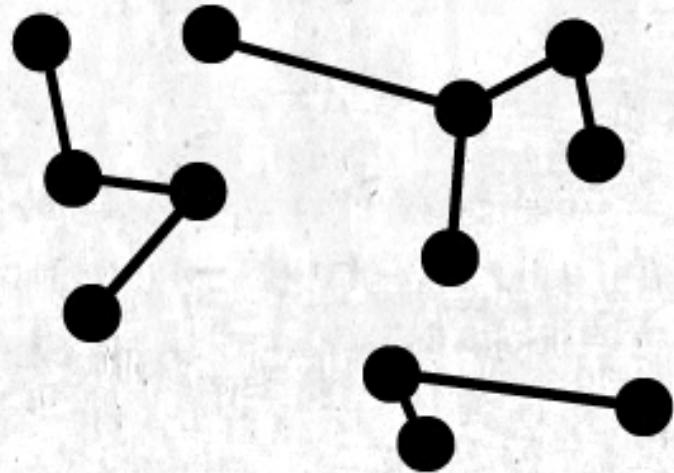

The berries of life,
will all but suffice.
To bring back that
of close gone,
or that
covered in bone.

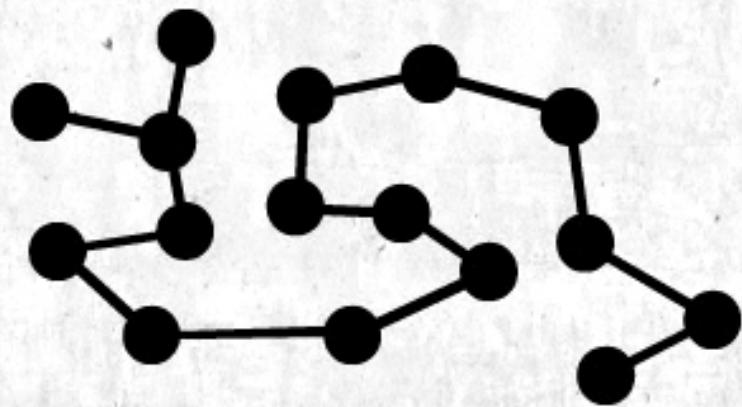

When the green
pods they lay,
the legs then go stray.
Hatch only one you may,
but be weary,
for more you will pay.

The waterfall dispells that disease which doth swell.
Yet fungi to devour,
is the need
you must dwell.
